

A Sheep of a Different Colour

In recent years I've been astonished and disappointed with how intolerant people have become towards people who have different opinions and thoughts or hold a different point of view to theirs. This intolerance results either in aggression or disassociation – or both. I might add that I am not disappointed that someone has a different perspective on something to that of myself; I am disappointed with their reaction to those who don't agree with them. After all, aren't people supposed to be individuals each having their own mind? It appears not.

An example of what I mean happened to me during the confusion caused by our incompetent politicians over the Brexit situation. I happened to mention my take on this 'in or out' vote to a long-standing friend of our family. It appeared that my point of view was rather different to his as he immediately terminated our friendship.

When we were living in the hospital with our dear little girl for more than eight months, we got to know our senior consultant very well – and he us. Towards the end of that time we started to discuss using medication that was being trialled – not approved. He informed us that "Twenty years is nothing" when it comes to developing, trialling and approving a new medicine.

Now, we are faced with a virus that originated in China that is deliberately destroying the economy of the world, probably as part of the *Great Reset*¹ instigated at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland on 20 January 2020, which is seriously bad news for almost everyone on our planet, and, all of a sudden, almost overnight, a whole bunch of so-called vaccines have been brought into use from a variety of countries and pharmaceutical companies. Maybe less than twenty months to develop and test a new medicine – not twenty years! Shouldn't that be a concern? It appears not, judging by the millions of people who are queuing up to have it injected into them². Rule by fear!³

Someone we have known for many years recently became ill. When I enquired about them some days later, I was informed that they had recovered and that "It was the after effects from our second vaccination". Of course, I said how pleased I was to hear of their recovery but not surprised that it was the vaccine that had made them unwell. I went on to say there was no point having an experimental (not fully approved⁴ - even in the USA where it has been approved only for emergency

⁴ The British Medical Journal states: The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency gave temporary authorisation to the supply of specific batches of Pfizer and BioNTech's vaccine on 2 December 2020, on the basis of efficacy data submitted between 1 October and 2 December 2020. The regulator credits the rapid turnaround to its "rolling review" process, which allowed it to analyse the data as they were submitted - notice the words used are temporary authorisation and rolling review.

The BMJ also states: A temporary use authorisation is valid for one year only and requires the pharmaceutical companies to complete specific obligations, such as ongoing or new studies, says the law firm Brodies.

use) vaccine for something from which almost everyone is likely to recover and where the long-term effects of the vaccine are unknown⁵ - and the effect on our immune system could be catastrophic⁶. According to the British Medical Journal, the Covid-19 vaccine trials cannot even tell us if they will save lives⁷. How bizarre is that? Get the vaccine into circulation and into as many millions of people as possible before we know if it's going to work or not! This is why the vaccine hasn't been properly and formally approved for anything other than 'experimental' or 'emergency' use. And millions of people are willing to be the trial victims – because of government and media-hyped fear!

I'd also like to add that recent studies have determined that the Covid virus is actually a vascular disease, not a respiratory disease as was originally thought. This may well be why so many people are having blood clots and suffering from heart-attack and stroke symptoms (I know some of these victims) – brought about by the vaccines – all of which contain what is called the 'S' protein of the virus, which is the spike that forms the crown, attacks the receptor ACE2, damaging the mitochondrias that generate the energy of the cells, thus damaging the endothelium, which lines the blood vessel⁸. This protein is replicated by all of the currently available vaccines (my emphasis).

It has become common knowledge that people are becoming seriously ill, or even dying, from various vascular problems likely to have been triggered by the vaccine. A number of people we know have been hospitalised and a young lady (age 31) living nearby passed away recently from heart failure. Five weeks later, her partner explained to me that he hadn't received the death certificate and although they know the cause of death, they couldn't (or wouldn't) explain why it had happened. She too, unlike her partner, had recently received the second dose of the mRNA vaccine. Speculation it may be, but there have been more incidents like this than one normally hears about – just too much of a coincidence.

The thought behind the vaccination programme is that whilst a number of people may suffer from these side effects, it is nothing to what they might suffer if they catch the real virus (or they may not suffer from these symptoms at all if they catch the real virus – debatable). However, it's certainly not much fun for those who do suffer what amounts to a very painful suspected heart attack whereby they are carted off to hospital in an ambulance – especially when they may not have caught the virus in the first place! And who knows what the long-term effects may be. Many people have already been killed by this vaccine, although the UK Government is hiding this information from the public - as admitted on their website⁹. It is also interesting that the UK Health Secretary, Matt Hancock, has implied that our immune systems are more effective than vaccines, when it comes to fighting off covid-19¹⁰.

Far away from 'brainwashed Britain', in Bulgaria, even doctors aren't sure COVID-19 vaccines are a good idea. Vlahova, a doctor for 42 years, is herself sceptical (about the vaccine). Of her 2,000 patients, only seven have died from COVID-19, she said, a rate of just 0.35%. She, therefore, considers the pandemic less of a risk than heart attacks or cases of cancer. And her patients tend to agree.¹¹ "I, as a medical practitioner, have to protect my patients' interests, and I can not guarantee anybody they will not get worse or develop new diseases after the vaccination" she said.

The next stage in this plan to reduce the world's population is for our political leaders to state that it is variants of the virus that are causing more people to die when, in actual fact, the reason they are dying is because they have had their immune system knocked-out by this 'experimental' vaccine. It will also be used as an excuse for implementing more control over the population as well. The UK Prime Minister has already set in motion the idea that more lock-downs will almost certainly be implemented in the Autumn and Winter¹² when there "could still be another resurgence in hospitalisations and deaths". Of course, the vaccine won't be blamed. Even the lock-down models are somewhat controversial and very flawed¹³, so how do the decision makers really know what to decide – what is correct or incorrect or what policies to implement? Or are they just carrying out their evil plan by doing as they are told by those who hold the puppet strings?

How does all this experimentation comply with the Nuremburg Code¹⁴ of 1947 which was established to protect people from medical experiments? In fact, the first statement of this code reads: The voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential. Sadly, our evil leaders have brainwashed millions of people into volunteering to have this experimental vaccine injected into them without telling them the consequences of doing so.

Continuing the conversation with our friend: Their counter argument was "Do you know better than the scientists then? How do you think they got rid of polio and other serious illnesses in the past?"

Bearing in mind what our senior consultant had told us, and with the benefit of history, I replied with "the vaccines you mention were all developed over many years and properly tested - not thrown together in a rush and untested. There are a lot of scientists and medical professionals against this (Covid) vaccine"¹⁵. I also happened to mention my thoughts on politicians as per "and one thing I've learned throughout the years is to never ever trust anything that comes out of the mouth of a politician - let alone a government". History has proved that time and time again without number.

Since the pandemic was started, further research has seriously questioned the mass vaccination programme, one of these studies being entitled The Safety of COVID-19 Vaccinations - We Should Rethink the Policy by Walach H, Klement RJ, Aukema W¹⁶. Note: some publications have retracted this paper despite the authors standing by what they have written. I wonder why?

Government policy is also being questioned by the inventor of the mRNA vaccines, Dr. Robert Malone, who states “We need to confront the data [and] not try to cover stuff up or hide risks”.¹⁷ Of course, the numbers being reported are totally inaccurate and misleading; deliberately published to frighten people the world over into having this killer vaccine even though its effectiveness against the Covid virus can only be described as dubious at best;¹⁸ the main beneficiaries being the big pharmaceutical companies and their shareholders.

Unfortunately, we are ruled by politicians who subscribe even less to what Napoleon Bonaparte said “The art of good politics is to make people believe they are free”. Sadly, our freedom is being eroded all the time and few people are standing up for what should be our right to live in freedom and to be able to express our thoughts and opinions without being penalised for so doing. Around the world, even history is manipulated (and always has been) to suit the government of the time.¹⁹ and Appendix 5 In fact, our rulers are ignoring democracy in their pursuit towards controlling our lives!²⁰

Another restriction on our freedom of choice is the recent ruling by the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) that supports mandatory vaccinations²¹ in their ruling that compulsory vaccination can be considered “necessary in a democratic society”. They went on to state: “Thus, where the view was taken that a policy of voluntary vaccination was not sufficient to achieve and maintain herd immunity, the national authorities could reasonably introduce a compulsory vaccination policy in order to achieve an appropriate level of protection against serious diseases,” the court noted in regards to the Czech health policies in the case where this ruling was made. Observe the use of the word “herd”. “Baa-Baa” say all the sheep together! The ruling was decided by the ECHR's Grand Chamber, which makes it final and prevents the applicants from appealing any further. No doubt countries like the UK, and others outside the EU, will take that onboard and adopt that ruling for themselves. The first step (and maybe the only step they will need) will be to instigate vaccine passports. If you don't have one your movements and many other aspects of your life will be severely restricted²² - to such an extent you'll find it impossible to live a normal life. No more freedom! Is that what people want? It seems so as more and more people seem to be willing to sign their lives away – for ever!²³

There are people who still believe that the authorities can't keep track of what everyone is doing in their lives. This, of course, is pure fantasy or wishful thinking. With modern computer systems you can be (and are!) spied on continuously. The authorities know exactly who has been vaccinated against Covid and, more importantly for them, who hasn't. There is nothing new about this. It was thanks to that mighty American corporation, IBM, and their data handling equipment²⁴ that the Nazis were able to 'process' the Jews during World War II about eighty years ago. As we all know, data handling systems have improved out of all recognition since then.

It is also highly questionable to believe what the main stream media broadcasts or publishes. Most of these propaganda machines are controlled by governments, huge corporations and powerful individuals who publish content that is often far from the truth and fail to publish what is really going on in this troubled world²⁵. On a somewhat humorous note, an editorial in The New York Times on 9 October, 1903, declared: “Man won't fly for a million years – to build a flying machine would require the combined and continuous efforts of mathematicians and mechanics from one million to 10 million years.” The Wright brothers made humanity's first powered flight 10 weeks later. How wrong can one be!

In recent times, one only has to remember the official lies told about the 9/11 tragedy²⁶ where three buildings were expertly demolished, the ridiculous 'war on terrorism'²⁷ (used as an excuse to invade and destroy other countries) and the lies told about the Saddam Hussain regime²⁸ before the destruction and invasion of Iraq. Remember the 'Blair' dossier?²⁹ and ³⁰ - laughable if it wasn't so serious.

To justify going to war with Iraq in 2003, Blair's right-hand man, Alastair Campbell, compiled the “Dodgy Dossier”, at the heart of which, as of Blair's subsequent statement to the Commons, was “a deliberate untruth” – that Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction. The “facts” were fixed to fit the policy³¹. Remember the weapons expert, Dr. David Kelly³² who dared to contradict Blair's lies? Consider also the ridiculous political scam called man-made climate change as one of the biggest lies ever promulgated³³ and ³⁴.

The conflicts that have taken place throughout the middle east have been a complete disaster, resulting in huge loss of life and the waste of many billions of dollars, all brought about by our leaders who are proven liars, masters of deceit, corrupt and incompetent. Even the American, Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction has stated much of this in a recent (August 2021) 140-page report³⁵ on how the USA failed in this war-torn country. For quite a detailed overview of this region of the world, I suggest you read The Great War for Civilisation – The Conquest of the Middle East by Robert Fisk who spent three decades reporting events in the region and fifteen years writing this book that highlights just how much deceit and corruption exists in this world which almost always goes unreported in the heavily controlled mainstream media (none this or the paragraph above was part of the conversation referred to above).

I was then informed by this person "I am sorry but I cannot be bothered to waste my time arguing with people of your mentality so please don't get in touch with me again. The end".

What this person failed to appreciate is that I could have been just as rude and insulting to him because my opinion is just as valid as his. Of course, I have far more respect for anyone's opinions than to resort to being rude and insulting. His opinion is just as important to him as mine is to me. In fact, I would go as far as to say that I would defend the right of this person to have a different opinion to mine and to express it. He is fully entitled to his opinion, albeit without his being insulting to others. This is what freedom of speech (and thought) is all about, although our freedom to express ourselves without suffering persecution or other negative consequences is fading fast in this politically correct world. After all, who wants to live in an Orwellian world - or even a world of totalitarian repression as we see in China³⁶ and similar states?

Apart from the genocidal situation regarding the Covid vaccination programme and the enforced lock-downs to our economy and the lack of freedom to live how we want to live, what the world also faces is a conflict between our individual freedom and slavery under socialism / communism. China is trying everything it can to rule the world³⁷ and being aided by the Democrats in the USA³⁸, especially President Biden, as well as other socialist leaders who are sucking up to China. Leaders of other countries are also 'selling their country' to the China in deals which will enslave them in the future – countries such as Hungary³⁹ for example, spring to mind as well as many African countries. It is well known that China is doing its utmost to illegally take-over areas of the Philippines⁴⁰ and extend its control to cover the international waters of the South China Sea.

The EU seems very slow to wake up to what China is doing throughout Europe, let alone the rest of the world, although some progress seems to be in the making – although this is primarily regarding the way China treats certain minorities and trade than an eye to the real future⁴¹ but at least it's something.

Thankfully, the UK is actually doing something⁴² instead of ignoring what is going on in the world by sending a Royal Navy task force to the Far East. How our inadequately equipped Royal Navy will cope is likely to be another story. China must be laughing at the size of our miniscule navy compared to theirs⁴³.

In the USA, it has got to such a point of crisis now that 120 Retired US Military Officers Warn of Conflict Between Marxism, 'Constitutional Freedom'⁴⁴

Why are so many people in the world asleep to what is going on? Don't they care about their freedom?

³⁸ Strange how communist states that have abolished democracy refer to themselves as 'democratic'. Remember East Germany was known as the German Democratic Republic when it was actually ruled by The Iron Fist behind the Iron Curtain and anti-democratic, tyrannical North Korea is referred to as the "Democratic People's Republic of Korea". The USA is going the same way with the 'Democrats' running the country.

*Mary had a little lamb,
Its fleece was white as snow;
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go.*

The last verse makes the point:

*"What makes the lamb love Mary so?"
The eager children cry;
"Why, Mary loves the lamb, you know,"
The teacher did reply.*

Do our leaders 'love us so'? I think not. Do we love our leaders so much that we always follow them? That is certainly what they would wish as that is how they remain in power. I'm delighted to be a sheep of a different colour⁴⁵.

I'm also delighted that my young son takes after me. In fact, even more so. For one so young I have been amazed at how perceptive and knowledgeable he is about what is really going on in the world. It is impossible to fool or brainwash him as we found out when he was very young. Sadly, he has learned the hard way that it is safer to keep his head down, his arm down and his mouth shut at school as independent thinking is not permitted these days, unlike when I was at school where I was educated and brought up to think for myself – not follow the sheep! Our education system doesn't allow for freedom of thought thanks to the politicisation of our education system. 'Brainwashing' is what governs our education system in these modern times – just as it did in Hitler's Germany – remember the Hitler Youth?⁴⁶

I'm very fortunate to have a few really good friends who are also free-thinkers and have different views to myself, from which I can sometimes learn too. We sometimes laugh at the difference in our respective points of view but maintain a great deal of respect and friendship for each other – and have done over many years. This surely is how life should be. Respect people who have different points of view, thoughts and opinions and learn from them – not disassociate oneself from them. Of course, I also have friends who share the same thoughts and opinions as myself, but we don't disassociate ourselves from people who have a different take on various issues. Indeed, it is always worth taking on board the thoughts and ideas of others as one can learn and even amend one's own points of view as a result.

Sadly, many folks these days aren't mature enough, whatever their age, to understand this and would rather throw their friendships away like a baby throwing its toys out of the pram. How juvenile is that? The question these people need to ask themselves is "What have I gained by behaving in this way to someone I've known and been good friends with over all these years?"

I am really not bothered at all by what other people think about various aspects of life, or what they think of my thoughts and perspectives – we are, after all, entitled to have our own thoughts and opinions about anything we choose. Of course, I respect the opinions and thoughts of other people; after all, whatever we think or whatever our points of view might be, we're not going to change anything – let alone change the world.

⁴⁵ According to the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary: The definition of black sheep (noun) is: a person who is different from the rest of their family or another group, and who is considered bad or embarrassing.

As a friend once said to me "You can't argue with ignorance". How right she was. One might also add that "You can't argue with politicians or governments" or you might end up going the same way as Dr. David Kelly and many others who have reported the truth rather than the pack of lies promulgated by our evil leaders.

One can only hope that the former President of the USA, Thomas Jefferson, was correct when he said:

"Difference of opinion leads to inquiry, and inquiry to the truth".

He also said:

"When government fears the people there is liberty. When the people fear the government there is tyranny".
Or in the words of another former president, Harry S. Truman:

"Once a government is committed to the principle of silencing the voice of opposition, it has only one way to go, and that is down the path of increasingly repressive measures, until it becomes a source of terror to all its citizens and creates a country where everyone lives in fear."

Isn't this where we are now? Not just in the USA, but throughout the world.

Appendix 1 – Man-Made Climate Change

by H. Sterling Burnett of Climate Change Weekly

Unsettled: What Climate Science Tells Us, What it Doesn't, and Why It Matters, by physicist Steven E. Koonin Ph.D. (for biography, see page 8), is number 15 on Amazon's list of top-selling nonfiction books, the top-selling book on Amazon Kindle in Weather and Climatology, and the second-best-selling book in 21st Century World History. By the time this review reaches readers, Unsettled might well be the bestselling book in all three subcategories, crack the top 10 in the nonfiction category, and be among the top 100 in sales across all categories.

Of the multiple books and documentaries poking holes in the apocalyptic climate alarm narrative released in the past year, Unsettled may be the most critical of all, because of who its author is.

Koonin was involved in the development of the early computer models used in science and wrote one of the first books describing how computer models were developed, how they function, and their strengths and limits when used in science. The book is still widely used in college classrooms today. Koonin has written more than 200 academic papers and articles, which have been cited more than 14,000 times, according to Google Scholar.

Koonin's research and writings on climate science and energy led former President Barack Obama to appoint him Undersecretary for Science in the U.S. Department of Energy. Koonin's portfolio included the government's climate research program, and Koonin was the lead author of the U.S. Department of Energy's Strategic Plan (2011).

Koonin is the ultimate climate insider. Climate hypers cannot plausibly portray him as fringe scientist working outside the mainstream or legitimately label him a "climate denier."

Koonin's research indicates the climate is changing and humans have influenced some of that change. Almost everything else people have been led to believe about climate change is unsettled, reports Koonin.

The author begins by describing what he refers to as "The Science"—you know, the thing everyone is supposed to be following:

'The Science,' we're told, is settled. How many times have you heard it?

Humans have already broken the earth's climate. Temperatures are rising, sea level is surging, ice is disappearing, and heat waves, storms, droughts, floods, and wildfires are an ever-worsening scourge on the world. Greenhouse gas emissions are causing all of this. And unless they're eliminated promptly by radical changes to society and its energy systems, "The Science" says Earth is doomed. [Emphasis in original.]

Well . . . not quite. Yes, it's true that the globe is warming, and that humans are exerting a warming influence upon it. But beyond that—to paraphrase the classic movie The Princess Bride: "I do not think 'The Science' says what you think it says."

Unsettled is presented in two parts: "The Science" and "The Response."

"The Science" comprises eleven chapters. The first two discuss what we know about how the climate works (hint: its less than you've been led to believe), and the extent to which humans are contributing to climate change (also less than you might think). The third chapter discusses how climate models have been developed and the ways in which their results are "muddled," in Koonin's words, instead of being definitive and trustworthy. Koonin shows models often contradict one another and fail to match observed changes in temperature and climate. This chapter also begins the book's examination of how various interested parties suppress and misrepresent good climate research in order to persuade the public we face a climate crisis. This latter point is a running theme Koonin highlights by citing specific examples throughout the book.

Chapters Five through Nine examine various negative effects purportedly being caused or exacerbated by human-caused climate change. This set of chapters is fairly summed up by the title of Chapter Nine: "Apocalypses That Ain't." Among the findings Koonin discloses are:

The late[st] generation of models is actually more uncertain than the earlier one[s].

Heat waves in the US are now no more common than they were in 1900 and the warmest temperatures in the US have not risen in the past fifty years.

Humans have had no detectable impact on hurricanes over the past century.

Greenland's ice sheet isn't shrinking any more rapidly today than it was eighty years ago.

The net economic impact of human-induced climate change will be minimal through at least the end of this century.

Regular readers of Climate Change Weekly are likely aware of these facts already, but they will be real eye-openers for most readers of Koonin's book.

The last two chapters of section one examines who "broke" climate science, and how and why, and then discuss how the science, along with how it is represented and reported, can be improved.

For me personally, these chapters are in many ways the most disturbing and interesting of the book, because they detail the ways by which the scientific enterprise itself is being perverted, to the detriment of both science and political decision making.

Science is a process, a method of discovering new truths and explaining currently unexplained or poorly understood phenomena. As Koonin's book shows in detail, many of those involved in climate research and reporting have abandoned science—the process of discovering data and evidence and assembling facts—for "The Science," a massive effort to persuade people to believe something that is not true, for normative or political reasons.

Koonin's suggestion that the federal government institute a "Red Team/Blue Team" exercise to examine and discuss the weak spots in various government climate reports before they are published has been met with hostility by many politically connected scientists and powerful government leaders.

Prominent Democrat senators such as Edward Markey (MA), Richard Blumenthal (CT), Jeanne Shaheen (NH), Cory Booker (NJ), Debbie Stabenow (MI), Amy Klobuchar (MN), and Diane Feinstein (CA) have supported legislation to outlaw scientific debate about what is known and unknown about climate change by "prohibit[ing] the use of funds to Federal agencies to establish a panel, task force, advisory committee, or other effort to challenge the scientific consensus on climate change, and for other purposes."

You read that right. Politicians who regularly demand people "follow the science" on climate change have tried to ban the use of the scientific method to discover what climate science tells us.

Of this, Koonin writes,

I confess to being shocked. ... [E]nshrining a certain scientific viewpoint as an inviolable consensus is hardly the role of government (at least in a democracy). And as a student of history, I found the bill uncomfortably reminiscent of a 1546 decree by the Council of Trent that attempted to suppress challenges to Church doctrine.

In section two of Unsettled, "The Response," Koonin explores why political diktats to curtail fossil fuel use sharply are likely to fail and produce outcomes as bad as or worse than the harms they are meant to prevent. Koonin suggests the wisest response to climate change, the response most likely to mitigate any harms while generating beneficial outcomes, is something societies have historically embraced in response to changing climate and sociopolitical conditions: flexible adaptation.

Koonin definitively shows that much more is unsettled than is settled in climate science, economics, and policy. Koonin's book deserves the praise it is receiving, and it merits wide readership. If it gets the audience it deserves, there will be one more thing unsettled: the narrative that we face a climate crisis so certain and so dire that only a radical government-controlled reshaping of the economy, people's personal lives, and consumption patterns can solve it.

Biography

Dr. Steven E. Koonin is a University Professor at New York University, with appointments in the Stern School of Business, the Tandon School of Engineering, and the Department of Physics. He founded NYU's Center for Urban Science and Progress, which focuses research and education on the acquisition, integration, and analysis of big data for big cities.

Dr. Koonin served as Undersecretary for Science in the US Department of Energy under President Obama from 2009 to 2011, where his portfolio included the climate research program and energy technology strategy. He was the lead author of the US Department of Energy's Strategic Plan (2011) and the inaugural Department of Energy Quadrennial Technology Review (2011). Before joining the government, Dr. Koonin spent five years as Chief Scientist for BP, researching renewable energy options to move the company "beyond petroleum."

For almost thirty years, Dr. Koonin was a professor of theoretical physics at Caltech. He also served for nine years as Caltech's Vice President and Provost, facilitating the research of more than 300 scientists and engineers and catalyzing the development of the world's largest optical telescope, as well as research initiatives in computational science, bioengineering, and the biological sciences.

In addition to the National Academy of Sciences, Dr. Koonin's memberships include the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and JASON, the group of scientists who solve technical problems for the US government; he served as JASON's chair for six years. He chaired the National Academies' Divisional Committee for Engineering and Physical Sciences from 2014 to 2019, and since 2014 has been a trustee of the Institute for Defense Analyses. He is currently an independent governor of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and has served in similar roles for the Los Alamos, Sandia, Brookhaven, and Argonne National Laboratories. He is a member of Governor Cuomo's Blue Ribbon Commission to Reimagine New York in the post-COVID-19 era.

Dr. Koonin has a BS in Physics from Caltech and a PhD in Theoretical Physics from MIT. He is an award-winning classroom teacher and his public lectures are noted for their clarity in conveying complex subjects. He is the author of the classic 1985 textbook Computational Physics, which introduced methodology for building computer models of complex physical systems. He has published some 200 peer-reviewed papers in the fields of physics and astrophysics, scientific computation, energy technology and policy, and climate science, and has been the lead author on multiple book-length reports, including two National Academies studies.

Through a series of articles and lectures that began in 2014, Dr. Koonin has advocated for a more accurate, complete, and transparent public representation of climate and energy matters.

The Politically Incorrect Guide to Climate Change

Less freedom. More regulation. Higher costs. Make no mistake: those are the sure-fire consequences of the modern global warming campaign waged by political and cultural elites, who have long ago abandoned fact-based science for dramatic fearmongering in order to push increased central planning. The Politically Incorrect Guide to Climate Change gives a voice -- backed by statistics, real-life stories, and incontrovertible evidence -- to the millions of "deplorable" Americans skeptical about the multibillion dollar "climate change" complex, whose claims have time and time again been proven wrong.

Green Fraud: Why the Green New Deal Is Even Worse Than You Think

"If you care about America's future, read this book."--Mark Levin

"A must-read book that shows how the Green New Deal is dangerous, impractical, misguided, and guaranteed to fail with disastrous results for the American people."--Sean Hannity

A New Lockdown to "Save" the Climate

That's what's in store for us if Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and the Democrats pass their radical climate plan--the Green New Deal.

It is packed with guarantees so completely irrelevant to the problem it purports to "solve" (like "free college" and incomes for everyone "unable or unwilling to work") that even its boosters have admitted it's not really about the climate.

The intrepid Marc Morano, author of the bestselling Politically Incorrect Guide to Climate Change, breaks down the science and the politics to expose the truth about the Green New Deal:

- The science is settled: copious evidence--and prominent defections from the "climate consensus"--make clear we are not facing a man-made climate disaster
- "Climate change" is the perfect Trojan horse for the socialist agenda of the Left
- Fossil fuels lifted the West out of poverty--but our elites now want to deny them to the world's poor
- The Green New Deal is on a collision course with self-government and our fundamental rights

Climate change has already been "solved" multiple times over the past two decades--with highly touted international agreements--and yet it never goes away as an excuse for leftist policies that will cripple our economy, impoverish the world, and take away our freedoms.

Packed with telling statistics, damning quotations, and real science, Green Fraud is your source for all the facts you need to understand--and resist--the threat.

Review

"Green Fraud: Why the Green New Deal Is Even Worse Than You Think is the ultimate guidebook to exposing and fighting this Marxist plan masquerading as environmental policy. . . . If you care about America's future, read this book." --Mark R. Levin, author and nationally syndicated TV and radio broadcaster

"Don't be climate hustled, read this book." --Kevin Sorbo, actor and narrator of the film Climate Hustle 2

"In Green Fraud, Morano shows that the growing movement from the Left isn't about the climate at all--it's about controlling every aspect of American lives and implementing broad, socialist policies." --Senator James Inhofe

"Marc Morano's book Green Fraud provides a factual scientific and political account of the Green New Deal and other misanthropic and self-serving schemes of the global elite and their opportunistic or deluded acolytes." --Will Happer, Cyrus Fogg Brackett Professor of Physics emeritus, Princeton University

"Morano is truly the Pete Rose and Hank Aaron of climate contrarians." --Steven Hayward of Power Line

"Morano's probably single-handedly, in a civilian sense, the guy (other than me, of course) doing a better job of ringing the bells alarming people of what's going on here." --Rush Limbaugh, nationally syndicated radio host and bestselling author

"The Green New Deal is one of the gravest threats facing America. This indispensable book is the most comprehensive takedown of the plan you will ever read." --Brent Bozell, founder of the Media Research Center

"This is a must-read book that shows how the Green New Deal is dangerous, impractical, misguided, and guaranteed to fail with disastrous results for the American people." --Sean Hannity, host of Hannity on Fox News and of the nationally syndicated radio program The Sean Hannity Show

Matt Hancock Says Immune System Is More Effective Than Vaccines

Speaking to SKY News this morning (11 May 2021), Health Secretary Matt Hancock confirmed that your immune system is more effective than vaccines, when it comes to fighting off covid-19.

He didn't mean to say that of course, but he did. Speaking to Stephen Dixon, Hancock said that having both doses of a covid vaccine reduces your chances of dying from the virus, by 97 per cent.

Fair enough, but if I come down with coronavirus tomorrow, my risk of dying is 0.0034 per cent. How do I know this? I used the QCovid calculator, developed by Oxford University and used by the NHS.
<https://www.qcovid.org/Calculation>

I've more chance of being pelted to death by squirrels chucking chestnuts at me, while walking in my local park, than dying from covid-19. It's important to always keep in mind, that the treatments Hancock referred to this morning, are not vaccines. They don't prevent illness.

The claim is that the vaccinated are less likely to get severely ill from covid-19. It's nonsense, all of it, but the media (as usual), is absent.

In the meantime, more and more evidence is emerging that the jabs, which have emergency use authorisation remember, are causing real harm. If you get your news from the UK press, you won't know this.

The excellent journalist Sally Beck has been speaking to the relatives of seniors who have died shortly after vaccination. The families Sally met, are convinced that the jabs played a big part in ending the lives of their loved ones.

Writing in The Conservative Woman, Sally says:

At the time I'd spoken to three families who had lost elderly relatives after vaccination and they all said they felt vaccination had played a big part in ending their relatives' lives. One man in his 80s who had Parkinson's and diabetes, received his second Pfizer vaccination and ten hours later was in a life-threatening situation. He later died. He received the jab early January, began vomiting and developed diarrhoea as a side-effect. He also had a duodenal ulcer which was aggravated by the vomiting and he began throwing up blood. He'd been prescribed blood thinners, medication contraindicated for vaccination, but the nurse had not picked this up. Because of the vomiting and diarrhoea, he became weak and then suffered a pulmonary embolism – a blockage of an artery in the lungs – which killed him....

If a patient dies within 28 days of receiving a Covid vaccine, regardless of whether or not they had underlying health conditions – remember that anyone with comorbidities who tested positive for Covid and died was said to have died with Covid – you would expect a major investigation, but it is passive. The MHRA said: 'We actively follow up all fatalities where permission has been provided to do so for further information including post-mortem details if available.'

Most families do not know they should fill in a Yellow Card, like Dave Ward, whose former partner Trisha, aged 43 died of a cardiac arrest hours after receiving the Pfizer vaccine. 'I had to search online to find the information. I wasn't told by any of the paramedics or professionals involved.'

Having found it he said: 'The Yellow Card Scheme is quite a hard site to navigate, and I can imagine some people would give up.' Dave's father has since died, three weeks after he got his covid vaccine.

Sally goes on to make a very important point and something which I was previously unaware of. She writes:

The most compelling information comes from the World Health Organisation who in their Global Manual on Surveillance of Adverse Events Following Immunization (AEFI) say that a full investigation should be mounted if two or more cases of the same adverse event are related in time, place or vaccine administration as well as AEFI occurring in similar age groups and populations.

Sally has repeatedly asked the MHRA why an investigation hasn't been launched as per the WHO guidelines. They haven't yet replied. In the United States, thousands of deaths following vaccination have been reported through VAERS (Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System).

FOX News presenter Tucker Carlson is covering the story. He's asked why the vaccine roll-out hasn't been suspended. He made the point that a swine-flu vaccine programme was suspended in the 1970's after 50 deaths were reported.

I say again. You'd have to be mad to take a risk with one of these jabs. The evidence is overwhelming that they are dangerous and that the media and the MHRA are covering it up.

Put that alongside the fact that you have at least a 99.7 per cent chance of surviving covid-19 and it's a no-brainer.

Appendix 5

Extracts from text by Sir Max Hastings

It is depressing to see how few countries encourage or even permit their citizens freely to chronicle and discuss their pasts, and how many instead forge fictional histories to support modern political purposes. In the U.S. and most of Europe, we take for granted a license to seek out truth. The Germans have an exemplary record, especially with regard to the mid-20th century, recently enhanced by Harald Jahner's new book "Aftermath," on German life after 1945.

Yet such freedom is increasingly threatened: The torrent of misinformation and disinformation peddled through social media is making matters worse. Trolls bombard online sources indefatigably, swamping them with lies.

The new populism, entwined with nationalism, demands partisan visions of history few scholarly historians would recognize. A generation ago, some of us were naive enough to suppose that the global village and the internet would make us better informed, more educated people. This has not proved so.

The difficulties with history faced by such democracies as France and Japan pose less alarming dangers for mankind than do those of the autocracies. But every society, including the U.S. and Britain, is weakened and diminished if its leaders or scholars forsake the perpetual search for truth which is the rightful business of us all.

As children, we mocked people who believed the moon to be made of green cheese. Today, a frightening number would swallow this, if informed of it by the government or political faction that they support. Increasingly in many nations, people are selecting their own personal truth about both the past and the present, and it is seldom the kind we were once taught in school.
